INDUSTRIAL LEADERS MEET AT VANCOUVER; URGE GREATER UNITY

Delegates From All Canada at Chamber of Commerce Convention—President Presents Report And Other Speakers Heard at Opening—Suggests Bureau of Educational Research

VANCOUVER, Sept. 7 (AP).—Keynoted by appeals from Canadian business leaders for strengthened national unity in the Dominion, the eleventh annual convention of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce opened here today. It will continue until Friday evening.

Hon. R. C. Matthews, chamber president, suggested in his annual report unity might be increased through reform of the educational system, so young people might be given a broader sense of duty to the state.

NATIONAL LOYALTY

W. Frank Prendergast, of Toronto, told the delegates from every province that efforts made to improve the economic position of "the less fortunate members of our society" provide "the greatest progress towards the objective."

Prendergast said it would seem unreasonable to expect wholehearted national loyalty from hungry or dissatisfied men.

"Loyalty deserves and must be rewarded by conditions that warrant individual security and contentment," he suggested. "It is in the study of these considerations and in an effort to ameliorate conditions, that we can make the greatest progress towards an abiding union."

BASIC INDUSTRIES

Mr. Prendergast said Canadian business men should take a broader interest in the problems of agriculture, and of all the basic industries. They should investigate the claims of labor, prepared to recognize merit in those claims where it exists. He said:

"What is required to bring about immediate improvement is complete co-operation and a degree of tolerance between and among the various groups, and a recognition that the only condition compatible with the political system which has held our loyalty even from the days before we were a nation, is a condition of continuous change and constant progress."

JOINS NATIONS TO FIGHT REDS

Hitler Links Germany With Japan and Italy in "Defensive" Struggle

NURNBERG, Germany, Sept. 7 (AP).—Reichsfuehrer Hitler joined Germany, Italy and Japan today in a "defensive" world struggle against Communism.

In his annual manifesto to the nation, delivered at the Nazi Congress, Hitler frankly voiced his readiness to stand by both Italy and Japan in a "defensive fight" against Bolshevism.

Diplomats attending the congress speculated whether Hitler, by referring to "defensive fight," was attempting to forestall a Japanese call for active assistance on the basis of the Japanese-German anti-Communist agreement, or was forestalling active participation in the Asiatic conflict.

MAY STAND ASIDE

Responsible sources indicated, however, that Germany did not intend to be dragged into the Sino-Japanese war on a basis of Communism.

Hitler's manifesto, read to the Nazi Congress by Adolf Wagner, Bavarian Nazi leader, while Der Fuehrer listened from a platform seat, left no doubt of Germany's solidarity with Japan and Italy against "Communist confusion" in both the East and the West.

The Nazis consider the entire world, with exception of these countries and Portugal, as partially "Communist."

A strong point in Hitler's proclamation was his emphatic reiteration of Germany's demand for return of the colonies she lost during the Great War.

CLAIMS RIGHTS NOT ABANDONED

United States Officials Say Warnings to Americans in China Misconstrued

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7 (AP).—State Department officials emphasized tonight that warnings to Americans to flee the danger spots in China were not to be construed as the abandonment of any American rights in that country.

They did so in commenting upon a telegram to Secretary Hull from the American Chamber of Commerce at Shanghai protesting "any official statement which could be interpreted" in China as indicating such an abandonment.

DENY STATEMENT

The answer to that, officials said, was that no such statement had been made, and that there is a broad distinction between getting out of the line of fire and relinquishing the privileges which have been established over many years.

The day brought an announcement that American consuls in Amoy and Foochow, located in South China, had been ordered to close their consulates and proceed to points of safety as soon as they have done all possible to evacuate Americans from their districts.

Japanese Fail to Crack Defence Line of Chinese Barring Big Inland Push

Chinese Stand Fast Against Onslaught, Inflicting Punishment With Machine Guns—Japanese Warships Maintain Bombardment—Evacuation Halted by Destruction of Aids to Navigation

SHANGHAI, Sept. 8 (AP).—Japanese battered Chinese lines with heavy land and naval guns today, but failed to crack the resistance barring their inland drive in the Shanghai sector. Despite a savage onslaught which began at sunset last night and raged almost ceaselessly into this morning, the Chinese stood fast to punish their foe with withering machine gun fire. Blazing fires lighted the whole of Shanghai's north-western skyline.

The American Seventh Day Adventists became the latest to suffer from the Sino-Japanese conflict, now in its third month.

Japanese took over for military purposes the Adventists' Mission property in the Yangtzeport district, northeast of Shanghai. (The headquarters of the World Conference of the Church in Washington reported missionaries already had evacuated their property in Shanghai, as well as conference medical institutions in the Hongkong district and on the outskirts of Shanghai.)

ANTI-PIRACY PARLEY GOES ON; ITALO-RUSSIAN BREACH WIDENS

Meeting to Check Mediterranean Submarine Attacks Will Be Held Friday With or Without Italy's Participation—Soviet Declares Mussolini Reply "Entirely Unsatisfactory"

Suggest Spanish Government Be Asked to Send Delegates

MOSCOW, Sept. 7 (AP).—Soviet Russia tonight accepted the British-French invitation to the Mediterranean "piracy" conference, again charged Italy with responsibility for attacks on merchant shipping, and asked why Germany was invited—contending that the Nazi state is not directly concerned with Mediterranean problems.

Russia asked also that the Spanish Madrid-Valencia Government be invited as a Mediterranean power, which is one of the victims of "pirate warships."

ASKS WHY GERMANY

The Soviet note was handed to the French and British embassies tonight. The request for explanation of why Germany was invited, asserted that only powers "directly connected in the Mediterranean basin" were supposed to be represented.

Soviet officials declared that Italy's reply to the Russian protest against sinking of her ships was "entirely unsatisfactory," and that the Soviet Government "maintains the accusations in their entirety."

The officials added they are unable to say what the next Soviet move will be. It will be decided

FEARS FOR WAR AFFECT MARKET

Millions of Dollars in Quoted Values Wiped Out in Trading

NEW YORK, Sept. 7 (AP).—A headlong retreat in the stock market today wiped out many millions of dollars in quoted values and knocked down numerous issues $1 to $10 a share in selling attributed by brokers partly to war fright.

It was the biggest break since July 21, 1933, measured by the Associated Press average price of sixty stocks. This average at the finish was off $3.50 to $20.20.

Yet volume of trading on the stock exchange, measured by standards of other severe declines in recent years, was not unusually large. Despite gaplike losses, which ranged as much as $14, transactions totaled 1,871,150 shares, impressive only by comparison with the recent extreme dullness. The total on Friday, the last full session before the Labor Day recess, was 690,000.

From the opening bell, stocks hit the down trail, with little rallying power to the finish. Some brokers were disposed to minimize the importance of the war factor. However, most commodities advanced, wheat gaining 2-1/2 to 3-1/2 cents a bushel in Chicago.

This would locate him about 100 miles north of the Alaska coast, and about the same distance west of the Yukon-Alaska boundary.

The explorer intended to fly to a point 83.14 degrees north and then north to 85 degrees, or further, the message said. This area is from 200 to 300 miles northwest of Herschel Island.

"Wilkins has asked us to stand watch on him continuously during the flight," said the message to the radio office here. "Radio contacts are perfect."

HEAVY CROP OF FRUIT ASSURED

Large Increase Indicated for Year in Agricultural Department Estimates

OTTAWA, Sept. 7 (AP).—Canadian fruit trees will yield a bumper crop this year. An Agriculture Department estimate today shows heavy increases in apples, peaches, plums and prunes, and a moderate crop of pears.

The 1937 apple crop is placed at 5,146,100 barrels, an increase of 1,030,900 barrels from last year; peaches at 628,330 bushels, up 188,160; plums and prunes, 185,720 bushels, up $2,070, and pears, 393,200 bushels, a decrease of 27,900 from last year.

British Columbia is the leading producer of plums and prunes with 136,630 bushels. Most of the rest come from Ontario. The Pacific Coast province also is the source of the bulk of the Canadian pear crop. It will furnish about 245,600 bushels this year and Ontario 147,600.

NUREMBERG, Sept. 7 (AP).—Chancellor Hitler tonight awarded the first German national prizes, substitutes for the Nobel prizes which were outlawed by the Nazis last year, at a cultural session of the Nazi Party Congress.

One of the 100,000-mark ($40,000) prizes went to Dr. Alfred Rosenberg, official philosopher of National Socialism, and creator of Teutonic neo-paganism which worships the old German Aryan gods. He has been a bitter and consistent foe of Jews, Protestantism, Catholicism and Bolshevism. His writings were formally banned by Pope Pius XI in 1934.

City Delegates on Way to Nanaimo for Municipal Meeting

Mayor Andrew McGavin, Aldermen W. Lloyd Morgan and Edward Williams to introduce Important Resolutions at Provincial Parley

HEADED by Mayor Andrew McGavin, City Council delegates to the Union of British Columbia Municipalities convention at Nanaimo, will leave this morning to attend a two-day business session at the Up-Island city. The Mayor will be accompanied by Aldermen W. Lloyd Morgan and Edward Williams. Alderman Archie Wills may not be able to attend.

Alderman John A. Worthington was at Nanaimo, yesterday, participating in a meeting of the resolutions committee held at Odd Fellows' Hall.

FOUR RESOLUTIONS

The Victoria delegation will move that the Provincial Legislature be requested to enact legislation at its next session, amending the Municipal Act, to provide that all land and improvements owned by any municipality and held or occupied by or for the use of any agricultural society or association, be exempt from taxation.

Considerable debate on the matter was held by the council last July, when payment of taxes to Oak Bay for the Provincial Exhibition Grounds was brought up. Taxes payable outside the city, mainly for the Oak Bay property, were estimated at $3,075.06.

Several aldermen were of the opinion that Oak Bay benefited from the exhibition more than the city proper. A move to expropriate the grounds to form part of the city, was not seconded. But the council felt there should be no tax payment to Oak Bay.

BOXING COMMISSION

Another resolution concerns establishment of a commission to regulate boxing and wrestling in the city, a matter discussed by both the City Council and Police Commission. The resolution asks that the Provincial Legislature enact legislation empowering any municipality within the province to appoint a commission. It is anticipated that such a body would also regulate sports other than boxing and wrestling.

A third resolution deals with the increase in the price of gasoline from 27 to 28 cents per gallon, without any given reason, on June 1. The resolution asks that the Provincial Legislature compel oil companies doing business in the province, to give ample notice of any increase, with a statement of reasons necessitating such a rise.

The fourth resolution to be presented by city delegates, urges the Provincial Legislature to amend Section 25 of the Municipal Act. Delegates seek to have the section clarified in order that a mayor, alderman or school trustee of any municipality shall not be subject to disqualification proceedings if he is a shareholder or partner in any firm doing business with a municipality and does not vote upon questions involving the particular firm.

BUSINESS LEADERS MEETING ON COAST

EDUCATIONAL RESEARCH

Hon. Mr. Matthews suggested Canada should set up a central bureau of educational research.

"A Canadian bureau of educational research would gather information about education in every province, and conduct educational surveys for the provinces," he said. "Such a bureau would have to be Dominion-wide, and have national authority, and would act as a clearing house for educational ideas. . . . If we do not undertake our part in the direction of character-forming along the right channels, we may find ourselves forced to hand over the administration of our country to a generation whose political and social beliefs are completely unsuitable in a democratic country."

"Canadian men need a broader sense of duty to their country than that of merely paying taxes," he said. "The foundations of that conception of the individual's responsibility must be laid early in youth—once implanted, it should be the dominating factor in our public and economic life."

AN EXPORT BAN

F. C. Brown, of Vancouver, president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, extended fraternal greetings to the delegates. In his brief address he suggested his organization and the Chamber of Commerce might work to stop sale of the Dominion's raw materials, like timber limits and ore deposits, for export in the raw state.

"In time we will have more people and more capital at our disposal, thus justifying more industrial development, making possible the fabrication of our raw materials for home and export markets," he said. "Today we have the unwholesome spectacle of foreign capital, using foreign labor, assembling Canadian raw materials for export in foreign ships."

MOONLIGHT CRUISE

There were no convention business sessions this afternoon. In the evening, delegates boarded a coastal steamer for a moonlight cruise through Lower Mainland coast waters.

Delegates were welcomed to Vancouver by Hon. Gordon S. Wismer, British Columbia's Attorney-General, W. M. Carson, president of Vancouver Board of Trade, and Alderman J. W. Cornett.

Morning sessions, Wednesday, will deal with "Public Relations," when principal speakers will be S. G. Blaylock, of Trail, B.C., general manager of Consolidated Mining & Smelting Company; Hon. Michael Dwyer, of Halifax, Nova Scotia, Minister of Mines, and J. V. R. Porteous, of Montreal.

legal Government of Spain the right, under international law, to purchase necessary arms and equipment, thus affording support to the Fascist rebels," the resolution added.

SUPPORTS LOYALISTS

Declaring Italians were aiding General Franco's insurgents, the congress resolved to support the Spanish Government's appeal to the League of Nations against alleged Italian intervention.

"It should be obvious that armed foreign intervention in Spain, which now endangers the freedom of shipping in the Mediterranean, threatens to disturb international peace," the resolution said. It was introduced by Sir Walter Clifton, secretary-general of the conference.

"It is therefore the duty of the Council of the League of Nations to examine this problem in all its aspects and propose measures including withdrawal of foreign troops from Spain, which will effectively safeguard the peace of nations and enable the Spanish people to recover their political and territorial independence," the resolution said.

DETERMINED FRONT

Sir Walter, in his report on foreign affairs, expressed the opinion that neither economic sanctions nor a break in diplomatic relations would be able "to call the bluff of dictators such as Hitler and Mussolini." Only formation of a determined front by democratic powers can halt the totalitarian states, he added.

Hugh Dalton, M.P., chairman of the Labor Party executive, declared the National Government in the last six years had "thrown away the moral leadership among nations" established during the previous Labor regime, when the late Arthur Henderson was foreign minister.

Dalton called the Government "a public danger." Great Britain "needs a Labor Government and the world needs a Labor Government in Britain," he declared.

Given unity, labor could win power and carry out its immediate programme in five years, Dalton told the congress.

Event for Overseas Men and Children Concludes Anniversary Celebration

Veterans' Day at Beacon Hill Park Monday afternoon concluded a long series of events organized by the City Council to observe the city's twenty-fifth anniversary of incorporation in fitting manner. The anniversary committee was assisted with the entertainment by Victoria and District Council of the Canadian Legion.

Headed by the Canadian Legion Band, war veterans wearing decorations, for which they fought dearly overseas, lined up outside South Park School. They marched past Lieut.-General Sir Percy Lake, K.C.B., K.C.M.G., grand president of the Canadian Legion; Captain J. G. Coffey Wood, his aide-de-camp, and Mayor Andrew McGavin. A reviewing stand was situated in a roped-off enclosure on the football ground at the Douglas Street side of the park.

Informal events held for children included stick the peg, potato race, basketball throw, softball throw, wheelbarrow race, sack race, three-legged race, skipping-rope race, Siamese twin race and a shoe race. Candies were distributed to all.

A comical football game between Fairies and Sheikhs, staged by veterans, caused considerable amusement among the 3,000 spectators. Britannia Branch, Canadian Legion, won eight straight pulls in a tug-of-war with Naval Veterans' Branch of the Legion.

Sailor Killed By Explosion On Freighter

LONDON, Sept. 7 (CP-Havas).—The Blue Star Line announced tonight an explosion occurred today on its freighter Sidney Star as the 11,095-ton craft was four hours run from the Canaries, islands off Africa.

One seaman was killed in the blast, the cause of which was not immediately determined. The company said the Sidney Star was en route to the United Kingdom from Australia with refrigerated meat when the door of its engine-room was smashed by a sudden blast.

Fattening EGYPT'S LEAN KINE

TONS OF CANADIAN NICKEL IN THE GREAT ASWAN DAM . . .

ONCE A YEAR life-giving moisture comes to the almost rainless land of Egypt. Away in the Abyssinian highlands the torrential rains of late summer swell the Blue Nile. Some weeks later this freshest of "red water" spreads over Egypt's agricultural region, bringing moisture and fertility.

Today this annual deluge is collected behind the great Aswan Dam, to be doled out to thirsty acres during the lean months of the year. Built to a height of 70 feet in 1901, this dam was raised 16½ feet in 1905, and recently another addition of 29 feet was found necessary.

Some 250 tons of stainless steel plates containing 9% Nickel were used to separate the old and new masonry, because such plates minimize friction and are not subject to corrosion. Nickel alloys are also used for the roller-tracks of the sluice gates.

With the help of better materials, man's engineering genius is today conquering obstacles that were insurmountable a few years ago. In the forefront of these materials go Nickel and its alloys to provide greater strength, toughness and corrosion resistance.

And to the world's far frontiers go International Nickel sales representatives to tell the world new ways in which Nickel can be profitably used in the peaceful pursuits of industry.

Increased sales of Nickel the world over mean more employment for Canadians and greater prosperity for Canada.

Successful Regatta For Sailing Yachts Staged at Cowichan

Northwest Yachtsmen Gathered at Up-Island-Bay For Labor Day Holiday and Competed In Fine Programme

By F. M. KELLEY

COWICHAN Bay makes an ideal setting for a yacht regatta and particularly so from a spectator's standpoint. It has sufficient length and breadth for a triangular course, providing all points of sailing, seven miles around, over which the yachts can be followed in complete flight from a number of vantage points along the shores.

Then it has the picturesque advantage of tree-clad hills looming up on all sides to suggest a landlocked lake and make a background of various green shades against which the white-winged craft stand out in vivid contrast.

No wonder Northwest yachtsmen have been attracted there on Labor Day week-ends in the past when there was a bit of sailing to be done, with the winning of a bit of meditation before the starting gun sent the larger boats away, there were all of forty little ships of various sizes and rigs under sail off the Government wharf, where the officials for the day were stationed.

WIND WAS LIGHT

Unfortunately the wind wasn't all it might have been. Posted to begin at 11 a.m., the time was postponed for an hour to give the weather gods plenty of time to make up their minds for the day, but the patience displayed was only partly rewarded. At the noon hour, a slight breeze came out of the southeast, freshened a bit, and for a while gave the yachts a wholesome breeze which carried the larger craft well out to the first mark in the second time around, and some of the other classes time to finish sailing, when it died away altogether in the vicinity of the last mark, and allowed practically all the racers left to group in one place for almost thirty minutes, when the fresh breeze sprang up from the northeast just as the judges issued an order to fire the recall gun and dispatch a launch for the purpose of towing boats without power to anchorage. The wind, from behind them, brought them all home together, and their wings extended, enabling them to finish well within any time limit which might have been set.

Yachts flying the flags of the Royal Vancouver Yacht Club, Royal Victoria Yacht Club, Seattle Yacht Club, Cowichan Yacht Club and Maple Bay Yacht Club competed in the regatta which, in the unanimous opinion of those taking part, was the most successful meeting ever held on the Up-Island Bay. All the clubs represented had yachts winning silverware. In the heavier classes the prizes went mainly to the Seattle and Vancouver, but in the smaller craft, Victoria, Maple Bay and Cowichan clubs all had winners.

Following the conclusion of the races, Commodore W. S. Day, of the Royal Vancouver Yacht Club, presented the trophies won by the Yachts. He spoke of the fine spirit exhibited by everyone as he made the presentations, and thanked the assistance rendered, as well as the members of the Royal Victoria Yacht Club who attended and acted in official capacities. Notably, Frank O'Reilly, as judge, and B. B. Temple as starter. Commodore A. Lane, of the Cowichan club, was officer of the day, while P. F. Thornton, secretary of the Cowichan club, and R. Van Dyke, fleet captain of the Maple Bay club, were the timekeepers.

CIRCE WINNER

"A" and "B" Class boats were grouped together in one class. Red Jacket, Circe, Westward Ho, Cresset, Lady Alice, Armida, Nelmar, Maratea and Gamine. Red Jacket led all boats to the finish line, but on corrected time Circe was given first prize and Gamine second. Four boats started in "C" Class, Gamine, Elmarsh, Richmond II and Seader. Elmarsh, M. D. A. Darling, Royal Victoria Yacht Club, was awarded first prize and Gamine the second.

In the Spencer Class, a group originating with the Royal Vancouver Yacht Club, four boats started: Lady Luck, Carita, Sir Ron and Marlin, the winners being Lady Luck, first, and Carita second. In the Racing Sloop Class, four boats also started: Spirit, Alexandra, Turenga and Riowana. The latter boat retired shortly after the start when her mainsail split. Spirit took first prize and Turenga second.

The star boats and dinghies provided the keenest racing of the day. Vancouver boats took first and second places, with Victoria placing third and second in the dinghy class. Eight stars started the same number of dinghies. The winning stars were Stardust, first, and Arica second. The first dinghy home was Pancho. Harry Barnes, and the second one, Kismet. H. Gann. Besides the cups supplied by the regatta committee, Stradford took the Troubadour Cup and Pancho the Cowichan Bay Cup.

In the Ship Class, Ward, of Victoria, was first, and I. Mutter, of Cowichan Bay second, while D. Griffin, Victoria, was third; K. Vidal, Maple Bay fourth.

DEATH HELD TO BE ACCIDENTAL

New Facts Disclosed at Inquest Into Passing of Mrs. Peter Chesworth

With a verdict of accidental death reached by the jury that investigated the death of Mrs. Peter Chesworth, some new facts were revealed at the inquest yesterday.

R. Valentine, brother-in-law of the deceased, who was driving the automobile which was in the crash with the C.N.R. freight train at the Colwood crossing on the Island Highway on August 21, testified that he did not know there was a crossing there, that another automobile blinded him with its headlights when it stopped on the other side of the crossing, and that immediately he saw the train, he jammed on the brakes and came to a stop five or six seconds before the collision occurred.

The coroner, Dr. E. C. Hart, pointed out that there was more of a pure accident surrounding this case than was often present. Ignorance of the position appeared to be responsible for it all. Had the driver of the car only known his exact position, he might have got over in the five or six seconds he had.

Members of the train crew testified that the freight train was moving at about fifteen to eighteen miles an hour. The headlight was on, the whistle was sounded and the bell was being rung. The evidence of the crew was that they believed after the Dunsmuir crossing was passed, the bell had continued to ring up to the second crossing.

The emergency brakes were applied as soon as it was seen that an accident was likely to occur, but in the distance the collision could not be avoided. Mr. Valentine, of Tranquille, driver of the automobile, was a stranger to the roads here. He testified that the night was rainy and visibility was exceedingly bad all the way from Ladysmith. Peter Chesworth, who was severely injured in the accident, attended the inquest and testified to the facts.

SAYS AMERICA TO SUPPORT BRITAIN

EDINBURGH, Sept. 7 (AP).—Dr. Charles A. Richmond, president emeritus of Union College in Schenectady, New York, said today, at the tenth annual Scottish-American memorial service, that "America would support Great Britain in any world conflict despite the Neutrality Act."

He urged Anglo-American co-operation for the maintenance of world peace "by force, if necessary."

JAPANESE FAIL TO CRACK DEFENCE

Japanese warships ranging along the winding Whangpoo River from Shanghai as far north as Woosung, twelve miles away, were the bulwark of the tremendous bombardment of Chinese positions.

HAMMER CHAPPEL
The guns hammered at Chapel Chinese section directly north of the International Settlement, Kiangwan, northeast of Shanghai; the North Railway station district; the Yangtzeport sector; and the Chinese-owned Yangtzeport race course.

Piles destroyed the Commercial Press building, rebuilt after the 1932 Sino-Japanese hostilities, and badly damaged the Anglo-American-owned China Tobacco Company's cigarette plant in the Yangtzeport sector.

The Press Building was reduced to ashes after it was struck by three Japanese bombs; the cigarette plant was believed to have been set afire because Japanese thought it harbored Chinese snipers.

BOMB WARSHIPS
In fighting north of here, Mayor O. K. Yui, of Shanghai, announced Chinese forces recaptured the Junkong Wharf district, midway between Shanghai and the confluence of the Whangpoo and Yangtze Rivers. He said Chinese warplanes in a night raid bombed a Japanese destroyer and a cruiser. Fire broke out on the destroyer, he reported, while a "terrible explosion" on the cruiser was heard.

Evacuation of tens of thousands of Chinese refugees from Shanghai to points in the Yangtze Valley came to a halt following the destruction of channel markers and anchorage buoys.

A spokesman for the Japanese navy said it had sunk two Chinese vessels which it charged were destroying markers in the Lower Yangtze.

PROTEST WARNING
The American Chamber of Commerce at Shanghai protested against President Roosevelt's warning that United States citizens remain in China at their own risk.

The chamber, cabled Secretary of State Cordell Hull that it deprecated "any official statement which can be interpreted as indicating any withdrawal or abandonment of American business interests in China, as seriously damaging to American prestige in China."

DISORDERLY MARKETING

If the proof of a pudding is in the eating, the market control method of farming appears to have furnished little but indignation for its sponsors after three years of actual experiments with a recipe flavored heavily with compulsion. The evident collapse of the milk marketing scheme on the Lower Mainland, breaking down on the substitution of a licence in place of a levy, is only one example in a long chain of such developments.

It is indeed something of a sober-minded admission on the part of the originators of the method that such plans work best where there is voluntary agreement to collect licences or impose levies, or do that which should be done. Voluntary agreement, of course, is something to be achieved outside of marketing law; and it is significant that the only agreement evident in most of the British Columbia marketing schemes has been upon a voluntary basis.

The plain fact is that no law can be enforced without the consent of the people concerned, and that in the case of compulsory market control that consent has been very largely withheld. Instead there have been records of police patrols at bridgeheads, arbitrary search and seizure of goods, an obvious waste of commodities held in an unstable state, and a fairly complete negation of the aim of orderly marketing that the law was designed to bring about.

How long will these experiments continue? Great Britain tried the plan and abandoned it. The United States found food control too hot to handle. Eastern provinces have largely declined to have anything to do with compulsion, or have modified schemes so that they are no longer government-ridden. Meanwhile, British Columbia is back precisely where it was three years ago. Is it not time to change the recipe?

TOWARDS WORLD FRIENDSHIP

The fifth World Jamboree of the Scout movement that brought together 28,000 Scouts at Vögenzang in Holland last month was another opportunity for promoting international friendship, a factor which has become one of the major motives in its constantly increasing growth. It was the thirtieth anniversary of its founding in England, when Lord Baden-Powell and his youthful companions "faced the world in shorts." Though the Chief Scout once confessed that he designed the movement for the Anglo-Saxon world only, it has long since overstepped that boundary. His dictum that "the true Scout is the one who makes the most friends" has now a wider significance.

Around the central rallying flag, many boys of thirty-one nations assembled. Here were French and German, Finn and Pole, Dutch and American, Hungarian and English. Barriers of speech were overcome by a spirit of camaraderie, with occasional help from interpreters. Here, too, boys from Ulster and the Irish Free State met each other for the first time in their lives, as also members of the Catholic and Protestant associations in France. The multi-lingual Swiss lads gave each other the salute for the first time. Divided at home, they were united abroad. Only a Jamboree can merge these diverse groups on an equal footing and thus give a suggestion of the legend worn on the breasts of the Dutch Scouts: "That they all may be one." This gesture towards world friendship is given by boys who are the men of tomorrow.

A CARLYLE CENTENARY

Thomas Carlyle's "French Revolution" was published in the late Summer of 1837, one hundred years ago. For twenty years of struggle and strain this literary genius had tried in vain to get a foothold. His "Sartor Resartus," with its quaint speech and unusual philosophy, had an indifferent public. Six years later Carlyle put out the "French Revolution," written, as he told his wife, "from a man's very heart." It broke through the public's indifference and the Scot of Ecclefechan found himself on the way to fame. Within eight years he was financially independent and had an established position among the chief writers of his day, and later, among the more powerful forces in English literature.

Nothing like the "French Revolution" had ever appeared in English speech. It was not the work of a scholarly historian, as of a Macaulay or a Gibbon. It was an impressionist painting of a tumultuous time, a series of vivid sketches of personalities and events. Here is displayed the artist in Carlyle. He wrote dramatically, as one who had entered into the emotions and thoughts of the characters that crowd its pages. The style is not unlike that of the best modern dramatic newspaper reporting, but with one difference. Carlyle's story is not lucidly informative. Historical notes are required to make some parts understandable. Certain of his descriptive passages are magnificent. Really a prose epic, here is an intense portrayal of one of the epochal periods in modern history, conveying a sense of titanic forces moving inexorably to a tragic focus. He gave, as John Morley has said, "the portentous meaning of that tremendous cataclysm."

If Carlyle as artist and dramatist is shown in the book, so also is the prophet. He saw in the guillotine and the Reign of Terror inevitable retribution for "the sum of wickedness, of falsehood, of oppression of many." In the spirit of the Old Testament prophets he cries: "Saw seemed the days of settlement, but they are sowing to the wind and shall reap the whirlwind." From this point of view his book was a warning to the British people, among whom he sensed a smugness, a complacency, following the Reform Bill; a pride in national power. He was fired with a temper like that of Kipling's "Recessional" sixty years later, though with greater passion. A reviewer in The Manchester Guardian has truly said that "he did not write, even for his own time, a complete history of the French Revolution, but his 'wild, savage book' will outlast most histories written since 1837."

THROUGH AMERICAN EYES

There ought to be sufficient resources at the command of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation without the necessity of including on its programmes the item known as "The Monitor View of the News." This is a summary by The Christian Science Monitor, of Boston, of world events, but one through American eyes. The Monitor is a well-informed newspaper with a fairly broad outlook, but it is naturally essentially American in its appraisal of world events. A Government-controlled organization for broadcasting in this country should endeavor, where it deals with opinions, to present the Canadian viewpoint, or the Empire viewpoint.

It may well be pointed out that a newspaper in this country has no right to make such a suggestion since the majority of the world news printed in the Press of the Dominion comes through American sources. This fact is admitted, and it is regretted that the newspapers of Canada are not yet sufficiently self-supporting to do away with such dependence. The circumstances of the Press and of radio broadcasting are not on the same footing. One is a private enterprise, the other is national. Moreover, the complaint is not because news derived from American sources is at issue, but because the comment on that news from the American angle is broadcast as a national venture. It would be far more to the purpose if a symposium of views taken from the Canadian newspapers were given to the Canadian public. National broadcasting should be for national purposes, and, secondarily, for Empire purposes, and not in any sense for the promotion of American viewpoints. The people of this country can get all the information they want about how newspapers published in the United States view events through their own Press, over American radio broadcasting stations and from American newspapers which circulate so largely in this country.

UP TO THE INDIVIDUAL

Road casualty lists are remorseless facts. It is forecast that in the coming holiday week at least 150 people will be killed on the roads of Great Britain. More than 5,000 will be injured. These were the figures for the same week last year. It is unhappily probable that this week they will be equalled, if not exceeded. New regulations and safer roads may or may not in the future check this grim figure, but the problem will be tackled with success only if every man and woman contributes personally in caution to the joint efforts that are being made. If you knew that in the coming week a major disaster which would cost 150 lives was regarded as inevitable, you would ask why someone was not doing something about it. What are you doing about road accidents? Be extra careful yourself. For carpooling is a spectacular result for your efforts, but you will have the satisfaction of knowing that each day you are doing your best to save those 150 lives that are menaced. After all, one might be your own—London Sunday Dispatch.

PHILOSOPHY

Philosophy can add to our happiness in no other manner but by diminishing our misery; it should not pretend to increase our present stock, but make us economists of what we are possessed of. The great source of calamity lies in regret or anticipation; he therefore is most wise who thinks of the present alone, regardless of the past or future. This is impossible to a man of pleasure; it is difficult to the man of business, and is in some degree attainable by the philosopher. Happy were we all born philosophers, all born with a talent of thus dissipating our own cares by spreading them upon all mankind—Goldsmith.

REGRET

He who has once stood beside the grave to look back on the companionship which has been for ever closed, feeling how impotent then are the wild love and the keen sorrow to give one instant pleasure to the pale heart, or atone in the lowest measure to the departed spirit for the hour of unkindness, will scarcely for the future incur that debt to the heart, which can only be discharged to the dust—Ruskin.

WISDOM AND CHARACTER

The character of the wise man consists in three things. To do himself what he tells other people to do; to act on no occasion contrary to his conscience; and to bear with the weaknesses of those about him—Great Thoughts.

Note and Comment

By Sandham Graves

The English language is full of pitfalls for a student. Take this serious-minded report which appears in an afternoon contemporary recently, as to who won the prize at a Mainland goat show. We quote: "Victoria Goats Win at Vancouver—The reputation of Victoria district as a goat-breeding centre was again upheld at Vancouver Fair this week, when Island goats took more than their share of the prizes in good competition. In the Nubian section, Miss R. Blank, or Nonsuch Lane, won two firsts, one second and two thirds. In the Saanen section, Miss Blank won three firsts, two seconds and two thirds, and Edward Blank won three firsts, two seconds, one third and two fourths. Gilbert Double-Blank, of Victoria, sent over one purebred Saanen kid, and it secured first prize in a strong class of eleven entries." The Saanen kid would have had some excuse for not taking a prize at all, in the case of such shift human, competitors. The names, of course, are purely fictitious, but otherwise the account is directly as printed. Tricky things to report, these goat shows; it is so hard to keep the animals in their places.

Psychologists of the United States, meeting in convention at Minneapolis this month, will address themselves to a comprehensive agenda, including "discussion of 'What makes a Radical so radical?'" according to a recent item sent out by The Associated Press. Members will "study animal behaviour, memory, mental measurement, conditioning in men, animal learning, social facilitation (the words are not mine), human learning, and personality as well." Somehow this column believes that the major question has not been very happily phrased. Just consider how many more people would have been interested if the problem had been stated, variously as: "What makes a Liberal so radical?" "What makes a Conservative so liberal?" "What makes a Radical so conservative?" "What makes a Radical so radical?" sounds almost like a jest, because the Liberals, Conservatives and the Derivatives have been far more radical than the radicals for ages, and, however, psychology is a free science, and will not submit to dictation, I am sure. So watch out for the Minneapolis reports on what makes a Radical so radical. Privately, I have the suspicion that it is because someone stole his wife, or his house, his job, but that I am not a psychologist, and that answer would be far too simple for the convention.

Nudists held a convention in New Jersey the other day in a 2,000-acre park, patrolled by platoons of police and flying squad cars as to its outer boundaries. So far as one may gather, the convention was a distinct success. The nudists did not get out, and the public did not get in. In that park, while hundreds were in progress, there was one small untoward circumstance, due to an excess of zeal on the part of the responsible officers of the law. They mistook a late-arriving delegate for an inquisitive member of the public. However, these nudists are to be commended. The nudists convinced the police of his right to admittance to the convention by removing his clothes faster than could a person without proper practice in that art. It was unofficially reported that his time for the develtute was 10 seconds, on the ground that he was the president of a sun bathing association, and due to deliver the main address at the convention. The police apologized fittingly. They even, out of deference to the distinguished visitor, removed their coats and hats and mopped their brows.

In Germany today they are counting even the sausages. The New York Times gave prominence last week to the case of a German worker expelled from the National Socialist Labor Front for throwing a sausage away through a window. In vain he pleaded it was his sausage, and that he could do as he liked with it. The Labor Front, however, expelled him, on the ground that he had been disloyal to the unity of the German people. Another rugged individualist, chastened in the cause of social security or something.

There is good in man. A taxi-cab driver down East carried a woman to her destination, and then drove two other parties, before learning that his first fare had left a purse with more than $5,000 in it on the floor of his cab. Two men rode a mile in the cab without disturbing the purse. It was the third fare, a woman, who found it, and she had the telephone receiver lifted to report the discovery to the company when the owner arrived to claim the purse. The cash was intact.

One research department reports that a prominent scientist is renewing his search for a eelgrass bee, a combaticated bee, a bee that will come to you with its honey when you softly whistle its favorite melody. There appears one slight drawback, and that is that a stingless bee would be a defenceless bee, and probably in the course of a dead bee, like a full of uncertainties for mail and his pet.

ON WAY TO WILLOWS
Sir—The S.P.C.A. has been asked to use its influence to have the trees in that part of Port Street known as the Dardanelles cut back, as they are apt to interfere with horses and other stock while they are being transported to and from the Willows, causing irritation and possible injury.
As stock is already being moved, and there is insufficient time to have this done, we suggest that truck drivers transporting animals to and from the exhibition use Pandora Avenue instead of Port Street.

Aqua Pura Is Best
While Bill, of the garbage department, made his rounds on a warm day his throat became clogged with dust. Eventually he arrived at a house where the tenant inquired: "Would you like a drink?" With violence of a glass or two of cold suds, immediately answered in the affirmative. "I thought you would," beamed the householder. "There's a tap in the basement. Just about if you want a glass." Like a true gentleman, disappointed Bill thanked the man and wet his whistle with aqua pura. . . . It was an inspiring sight to see Jim walk into the club with an enormous flaming Sunset dahlia, measuring thirteen and one-quarter inches in diameter. He told us he kept his garden free of earwigs by setting several lengths of rusty iron pipe in the ground, filled with earwig bait. He emptied them every morning, he said. . . . Clubman Harry strolled in wearing a tie closely resembling a piece of lopsided skin. After running the gauntlet of numerous audible comments, he tried to convince us he purchased it at the tent store. But Aubrey noticed the tag of an expensive Seattle store on the cravat. We understand Harry gave the tie to the janitor. . . . Horace left his peewee automobile outside the club, covered by his overcoat to keep rain off the shining paint. When he looked for the machine it was gone, but the coat was lying on the sidewalk. Teddy sympathized with Horace and urged him to shake the coat. . . . G.B.

Speedy Lads
An orchid is due the local spectators, many of them piloting cars built by themselves, who gallantly compete with more experienced drivers from across the line, driving specially built racing jobs, at the Langford speedway meets. Although their cars are no match for those of the Americans, the boys turn the hand over with their waagons opened to the last notch and really provide the visitors with some hard competition. Here's hoping one of the Victoria lads gets the opportunity to crawl in behind the wheel of an A1 machine in the near future and show visiting drivers that although our little town is reported to be pretty slow its sons don't have to eat anybody's dust.—W.I.F.

The Patricia
There were pictures in one of the better-known Vancouver publications quite recently, showing the gallant Gulf flyer, Princess Patricia, as the trim ship appeared during the years she was in service, and after the junkers had done their work. The scrap metal that is left, an unending informed all those who read, is to be sent to Japan. . . . Probably the plates of the Patricia will be finally utilized as bullets to capture some desperately held post during the Oriental conflict. It will not be the Patricia's first introduction to warfare. There was a day in 1915 when the men of No. 1 Tunneling Company left Nanaimo for overseas, packing the deck space and overflowing to the rigging, as the vessel swung past Galleons Point to head for the open Gulf and Vancouver. CULBERTSON on CONTRACT

By Ely Culbertson

World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

"Dear Mr. Culbertson: Do expert players, such as you and I, always arrive at the best possible contract on every bridge hand? Did you ever hold a cold, laydown, ironclad look at each other's hand, they would have to fear a grand slam. The chance of running the spade suit without loss (that the lack would be revealed, which was vital to the success of a grand slam contract, is slightly less than two to one. This is a good chance, but not quite good enough. When a small slam is cold and a grand slam in question, there should be fifty-three to one odds in favor of the higher contract.

There was nothing wrong with the bidding of either player, and it followed as the night the day that there was nothing wrong with the final contract. I can, of course, understand that the kibitzers were contemptuous, because it is a well known fact that kibitzers are the greediest breed on earth.

TODAY'S QUESTION
Question—The bidding has been: South West North East
2 - Pass 2 NT Pass
3 - Pass ?
What should North's next bid be?
Answers—Four spades South's opening bid was forcing to game. South cannot pass. South having bid two suits, North shows that he prefers the spade suit.

FLYING BASEBALLS INJURE SPECTATORS

PRINCE GEORGE, B.C., Sept. 7

Flying baseballs in the twelfth inning final for the British Columbia Central-Interior championship left two injured today. Hal Rogers, pitcher for the Prince George team, which lost to Smithers, 5-4, Monday, was knocked unconscious when struck by a thrown ball. Evelyn Chupak, a spectator, suffered a broken nose when a ball hit her. Neither was injured seriously.

FIFTY YEARS AGO TODAY

(From The Daily Colonist of September 8, 1887.)

St. Andrew's Church—The annual meeting of St. Andrew's Church association was held on Monday night. The attendance was large and the proceedings most interesting. After the usual routine business was transacted, a resolution in favor of union with the Presbyterian Church in Canada was unanimously adopted and we understand immediate steps will be taken to secure the services of a permanent pastor. We are glad to learn that the financial report was very satisfactory and that the outlook for the church is hopeful. It is interesting to note how well the association union fellows upon the basis of spiritual union in the Dominion.

A Close Call—During a fog in the Marina Bay, the crew of the tugboat Pea-Boat, after several hard dodging, found themselves within a mile and a half of the Okeana. While there in a fever and trembling, they were beckoned for one day and a half after the fog cleared. Just around the point was Okeana, and it was every moment expected that a steamer would come in sight.

Militant Peace Spirit Required To Right World

Watson Thomson Opens Women's Canadian Club Season With Thoughtful Address on "Canada, The Empire and the World"—Critiques Dominion for Not Accepting Autonomy

THE need for consideration of peace not as a passive and emotionless dogma, but as a positive and inspiring force fired by a passionate desire for the wiping out of war and the creation of a more human relationship and tolerant understanding among all peoples was emphasized by Watson Thomson, late of Glasgow, Scotland, in the thoughtful address he gave yesterday afternoon at the opening meeting of the Women's Canadian Club 1937-1938 season at the Empress Hotel.

Speaking to the subject of "Canada, the Empire and the World," Mr. Watson, who was introduced by the newly-elected president of the club, Mrs. Harold L. Campbell, discussed the second element, "The Empire," first.

"What is it in the British character that makes us able to absorb so many races, religions and points of view?" he asked. Was it not what was popularly known as the British sense of fair play, their strong desire for impartial justice, their wish to see both sides of every dispute and to arrive at some kind of objective impartial decision.

THE NEED TODAY But this was not proving successful, it was not being "put over," so that it met the needs of the world of today. Favoring neither Communism nor Fascism, Britain was falling behind in following this middle course attitude. A more active "high temperature" force than this old attitude of "low temperature" impartiality was needed today, the speaker stated.

"Perhaps it is our function to find out what this Communism and Fascism means; to find out the validity of these two movements and from the knowledge gained translate our middle-way attitude into one of action," said Mr. Thomson, who believed that Britain might, in such circumstances, be the instrument by which the violent extremes that were tearing the world to pieces might be reconciled. The driving force toward such an attainment would be a passionate interest in one's fellowmen, not a merely passive desire for peace, but an overwhelming desire for the building of constructive co-operative commonwealth of nations in which conflicting attitudes of mind would be fused.

REINTEGRATION The time was coming when the people of the British Empire must choose between the breaking up or disintegration of the Empire, which Mr. Thomson recognized as being in progress at the present moment, and reintegration, "the making of a new kind of cohesion."

"There is no possible chance of doing that now except by the intensity with which we believe in humanness before even Britishness," he maintained, adding that he believed that in its real meaning the function of the British Empire was to point the way toward world federation, to fill the role of something more effective even than the League of Nations in bringing about a federated, co-operative human family.

CANADA'S ROLE Canada, in the speaker's opinion, had not yet realized or accepted the autonomous position given her within the British Commonwealth.

She was still uncertain whether she had passed out of the age of tutelage. Although perfectly capable of being a powerful entity, she had not yet taken this position. This was not playing fair, Mr. Thomson maintained. Within herself she could practice the first principles of federation by bringing about a better cohesion and understanding between her own nations. A complete break from the Empire was not implied in Canadian autonomy. It meant, instead, thought Mr. Thomson, a firmer linking up with the larger group. It would, indeed, be poor use to make of her freedom to break away from Britain, who needed the reinforcing energy and heartening that only her sons and daughters could give.

People were crying "Peace! Peace!" But it was not that way that world escape from the present impasse lay. The Empire which had found itself through the principles of reconciliation and universal democracy should be able to say that they would oppose with all their resources the first nation that struck at the peace of the world. The ultimatum should be followed by immediate action, not delayed "by any six months' argument at Geneva," and Mr. Thomson believed that in such action, Britain would have the support of the United States, France and Russia.

MISS MARY SOMMERVILLE

In private life, Mrs. Mary Brown, went to Japan to attend the World Education gathering in the Japanese capital. She is in charge of the educational programmes of the British Broadcasting Corporation, and was met on the arrival of the American Mail liner, President Jefferson, here yesterday, by Albert Sullivan and Major L. Graduate Nurses' Head Resigns to Go to Vancouver

At the meeting of the Graduate Nurses' Association, held last night at St. Joseph's Hospital, the resignation of the president, Miss E. Toynbee, who has held office for the past three years, was regrettably accepted, and Mrs. Bothwell, second vice-president, was named as her successor.

On motion of Miss E. Franks, a cordial expression of appreciation was passed to Miss Toynbee, whose able tenure of office had won the admiration of all the members. She is leaving shortly to take a position in the Vancouver General Hospital.

Following the business session, Miss Cressor, supervisor of the Victorian Order of Nurses, gave an interesting talk on the work of the order.

She and her mother, the wife of an aviation adviser to the Chinese Air Service, are going to California to await the end of hostilities.

Little Stories for Bedtime

Chatterer Gets Reckless
By THORNTON W. BURGESS

The eyes of Chatterer the Red Squirrel are very sharp and his ears are sharp. When he sat in the top of the tree near the little house where Farmer Brown keeps his corn, the little house on four stone legs, which Chatterer could not climb, he took note of everything in sight of those sharp little eyes and almost right away he saw that a branch of the very tree he was sitting in stretched right over the roof of the little house, and the very tips of some of the twigs actually touched it.

Chatterer's eyes danced. "If I can't get in from the ground perhaps I can get in from the air," said he, and chuckled. Of course, it wouldn't really be getting in from the air, but it would be about the same thing. Chatterer looked around hastily to see if anyone was watching. No one was in sight but Black Pussy watching him from the ground, and Bowser the Hound, who had not yet waked up. He didn't mind either of these, because neither of them could get at him up there. He ran lightly out along a branch over the roof of the little house and jumped to it. Swiftly he ran around the edge of it, peeping over. He was looking for an opening big enough to crawl through.

At last he found one. He slipped a knothole close up under the edge of the roof. It looked almost big enough. Chatterer dug his sharp claws into the wood to keep from falling and very carefully crept over until he had safely reached the hole. It wasn't quite big enough to push his head wholly through. Graw-graw-graw! Little splinters began to fly. Graw-graw-graw! It was almost big enough now. Just then a door slammed in Farmer Brown's house and Farmer Brown's Boy came out with a milk pail in each hand. Graw-graw-graw! The hole was big enough and Chatterer slipped inside just as Farmer Brown's boy noticed Black Pussy sitting on the ground staring up at the roof of the little house where the corn was.

"Hello, Pussy! Did you think you heard a mouse in there?" exclaimed Farmer Brown's boy. "You didn't, because no mice can get in there. That's why the corn crib is on four stone legs. No one can steal our corn once it is in there. Come along to the barn and I'll give you some nice fresh, warm milk."

"Pheui!" exclaimed Chatterer to himself. "That was a narrow escape! I'm glad that pesky black cat can't tell Farmer Brown's Boy what she saw."

He peeped through a crack and saw Farmer Brown's Boy go over to the barn and Black Pussy follow him. When they were out of sight he turned to see what kind of place he was in. His eyes glinted with greed. Corn, corn, corn everywhere. The great golden ears filled the whole of that little house clear to the roof. It seemed to him that there was corn enough for all the squirrels in the world.

And it all mine! gasped Chatterer. You see already he had forgotten that he was stealing and that he belonged to Farmer Brown. Then he began to eat, and he ate and ate and ate until he couldn't swallow another mouthful. He was too full to move.

"I believe I'll take a nap right here," said he to himself, and curled up in the darkest corner in a little hollow in the heaped-up corn. In two minutes he was fast asleep dreaming such beautiful golden dreams in which all the world seemed to have turned to golden corn, and all for him.

"TIRED" ALL THE TIME

She felt miserable—drowsy—low in vitality—lacking in energy. She hadn't thought of her kidneys until a friend suggested Dodd's Kidney Pills. At once she took Dodd's. The "washed out" feeling was soon replaced by clear-headed energy. Headache, backache, lassitude and other signs of faulty kidneys disappeared.

That Body of Yours

(By James W. Barton, M.D.)

SHOULD THE THYROID GLAND BE REMOVED IN SEVERE HEART DISEASE?

The juice manufactured by the thyroid gland in the neck has been likened to a whip that speeds up the various actions of the body. It has also been likened to an open draft on a furnace, an open draft that burns up the fuel food and body cells rapidly or merely. This is the reason that patients with goitre are thin, nervous, irritable and think and act quickly.

One of the organs whose work is speeded up to a very rapid rate is the heart. Instead of a heart rate of 72 to 76, many of these patients have a rate of 110 to 130 or more.

Physicians, realizing that this rapid heart rate would, in time, tire or exhaust the heart's reserve power, particularly in hearts already damaged or beginning to fail, have had the thyroid gland removed. The heart freed from this normal driving force comes back to normal almost immediately after the operation.

You can thus understand why surgery is now so popular in these cases of failing hearts where complete rest or the use of digitalis and other steady drugs have failed to slow down the heart in cases considered hopeless.

However, the very brilliance of these results obtained in such a short time may at times tempt both physician and patient to use this method instead of trying out the rest and medical treatment for a reasonable time. The result is that once in a while a patient who has the entire thyroid gland removed finds that where everything worked too rapidly—rapid heart, removal of all fat tissue, very rapid thought and movement—now everything works too slowly, heart becomes very slow, fat accumulates on the body, thought and movement become slow. The heart is perhaps made safe and thus the life saved, but the individual becomes slow, mentally and physically, and has to take thyroid extract daily for the rest of his life.

The point, then, is that where the heart is rapidly failing, despite rest and medical treatment, the thyroid gland should be removed; but where there is reasonable hope of getting results other than by complete removal of the gland, the patient should be given further rest and medical treatment instead of undergoing operation.

CHAPTER XXVIII

She was leaning over a drawer of the steel files in the study, fingering alphabetical tab cards, when she heard Sheila's voice on the porch. "We thought you had decided to run out on us. Have a nice trip, darling?"

"Hi, you . . . I" That was all, but Polly knew it was Angus and a moment later she heard him running up the steps. Their conversation was a low mumble then and she went on with her work.

Only Sheila had come down to have breakfast with Polly and Tod, but Polly knew that she must face Evelyn at luncheon and she felt it in her bones that Evelyn would ask her to leave the house. After all, from Evelyn's point of view, there was no reason why she should stay longer. Fordell had hired her as his secretary. Now that he was dead, why should she want to stay on?

Presently she heard Sheila and Angus in the living-room and a few moments later Angus opened the door and peered in. "Sheila tells me you're working. You shouldn't know—no, not in here." He came into the room and Polly saw he was wearing the same light grey suit in which he had gone off yesterday. His eyes were a little red and a tight hatband had left a pink line across his forehead.

"You've just come back, Angus?" "Just." He wiped his forehead.

The wonder is that I'm back at all."

"Was it as wild a party as that?" "Oh, no; I didn't mean that. One other and I. A few drinks but no hilarity. But I almost rubbed myself out against the back of a truck loaded with logs. About an hour and a half ago, I should say, just on the other side of a place called Gardens Corner. The idiot parked his truck on the highway and a car coming from the other direction caught me in a pocket. Nothing happened," he grinned, "but it was my narrowest squeeze. I was glad you were not along."

"I don't mind narrow squeezes," Polly said. "Sit down. You look tired. And," she added, "sleepy. I suppose you talked all night?"

"Until about 4 o'clock—This lad and I were in college together. He's younger than I, but we were friends and we found a good deal to say . . . Did Sheila tell you I drew a blank on Marco?"

"Yes." She looked at him, curiously, suddenly smiling. "But I knew it before Sheila did. She looked toward the open door, and said, 'Is she coming back?'"

He nodded. "Gone to get my key. I haven't been home yet." His eyes fastened on hers. "What did you mean by what you just said?"

"I'd rather not talk here," Polly told him quickly, in lowered voice. "But I've a lot to tell you. If we could get off for a little while late this afternoon. Sometime after 4, or—"

She heard Sheila's light tread on the stairs and put a finger to her lips.

Angus nodded, said aloud, "A little more attention to details and I could have been saved a trip to Savannah. Chief Carter called the Savannah police and asked them if the man they were holding had a scar on his right cheek. The reply was 'yes.' And so he had, but it was the thin, serpentine scar of a knife. The bird had something on his conscience, but they had to let him go, of course."

From the doorway Sheila said, "Here it is, Angus," and held out the key. "Jerry Brill locked up for you."

Angus brows knit. "Brill?" he said.

"Yes. He happened to be here when you called and he volunteered to go over."

"Oh, I see. Well, my thanks to Brill." He took the key and followed Sheila into the living-room. "Want this door closed, Polly?"

Polly nodded and as he reached back for the knob, his right eye half closed. It was a signal and Polly smiled. Then the door closed and she gave her attention to the open file drawer once more. But she was finding it very difficult to

Seek Life in Destruction

Working tirelessly without thought for their own safety, these Red Cross workers and nuns search through the ruins of shell-torn Shanghai to succor soldier and civilian victims after the curtain of fire that descended from bombarding Japanese warships lifted to reveal utter destruction in native sections of the great city. All around the International Settlement and into the supposedly sacrosanct area itself, death and desolation is spreading as warring Chinese and Japanese forces continue their bitter clash. This particular sector of ruin is in Chapei, the Chinese quarter.

work. Fordell's desk, where she had found him murdered, was at her back and she tried not to look at it. Angus had said she shouldn't work here—but she hesitated to suggest a change until she knew whether she was to be permitted to continue the work Fordell had assigned her or summarily dismissed. Perhaps she should bring the subject up herself, tell Evelyn frankly what her husband had asked her to do.

A message arrived when they were at lunch. Tilda brought it in and laid it beside Polly's plate. Polly read it there, feeling Evelyn's sharp eyes upon her.

"Please continue work of arranging and cataloguing Norris Fordell's materials. Your salary and expenses will be paid from a contingent fund of the War Department. A representative of this department will call on you shortly to discuss details. Gratefully . . ."

The message bore the signature of the Secretary of War.

Polly rose, walked around the table and gave the message to Evelyn. "I will not go on with the work," she said quietly, "unless it is entirely agreeable to you, Mrs. Fordell."

Evelyn read the message, suddenly looked up. "But, of course, it is agreeable to me," she said, and Polly was amazed to see what had all the appearance of a friendly smile on Evelyn Fordell's lips. "This is what my husband would have wished you to do. Naturally, his wishes are mine."

Polly went back to her chair far more ill at ease than she would have been had Evelyn behaved as she had expected she would; and when Angus arrived at 4:30 and led her out to his car, she told him of the incident at once. But Angus only smiled.

"Let's hear about Marco first," he said. "I'm devilishly curious."

So she told him of their visit to

Bill Lee Pitches Chicago to 8-5 Victory Over the Cardinals in National League—Giants Still Two And a Half Games Ahead—Senators Trim Boston Red-Sox Twice in American

NATIONAL LEAGUE

CHICAGO, Sept. 7 (AP)—Big Bill Lee supplied the pitching and Phil Cavarretta did the important hitting today as the Chicago Cubs whipped their St. Louis Cardinal cousins, 8-5, in the first game of the series to trim the tie New York Giants two and one-half games.

The victory was the Cubs' eleventh in thirteen games with the gas-house gang this season, and Lee, making his fifth start in quest of his thirteenth triumph of the season, finally connected after a jittery start. The pitching victim was a former Cub, Fred (Shenfield) Blake, who went the route, yielding eleven hits, three of them by Cavarretta.

BROOKLYN, Sept. 7 (AP)—Rallying in the late innings behind the effective hurling of Fred Fitzsimmons and Roy Henshaw, the Brooklyn Dodgers today defeated the Boston Bees, 6-1, in the rubber contest of the three-game series.

Fitzsimmons, making his first start since breaking a finger on his throwing hand, August 4, worked the first seven innings, but tired and gave way to a pinch hitter. He held the Bees to five of their six hits and allowed their only run.

BOSTON, Sept. 7 (AP)—The one-armed Boston Red Sox tonight teetered on the brink of the second division after the Washington Senators pasted them twice in an afternoon double-header, 11-5 and 9-4.

DALE STARS AT NANAIMO TRACK MEET

Victoria Track and Field Ace Captures Trophy at Annual Event

NANAIMO, Sept. 7.—Bill Dale, Victoria, took the high aggregate, with eighteen points, at the track and field meet held here on Labor Day under the auspices of Nanaimo Track and Field Association in their third presentation of the British Columbia women's championship meet and the eighth annual presentation of the Vancouver Island championship track and field meet. Thirty athletes from Victoria, under Archie McKinnon, took part in the meet, and captured eleven firsts, fourteen seconds and thirteen thirds, with eighteen points, took the Aldous Cup for high aggregate, and Campbell Williams, Nanaimo, and Art Chapman, Victoria, tied for second place with fifteen points each.

A local track record fell when Campbell Williams ran the 100 yards, open, in 1:01.5, while Barbara Howard, colored flash Vancouver, smashed all British Columbia records when she raced the 100 yards in 1:11.5, two-fifths of a second below the existing record.

Campbell Williams, who will not be sixteen years old until next December, was the local hero. He won the men's 100 yards, open, in 1:01.5, not only defeating the field, but also breaking the tape-head of Howie McPhee, Vancouver, who represented British Columbia at the Olympic Games. Williams also won the men's (Nanaimo City) 100-yard race in 1:01.5, and took an easy victory in the hundred for boys under sixteen, this time in 1:03.5. British Columbia Titleholder Finishes Lone Stroke Behind Nora Hankin, Montreal, in Medal Test in Canadian Golf Championship—Mrs. Cuppage Qualifies—Mrs. Wilson Fails

By CHARLES EDWARDS

NIAGARA COUNTRY CLUB

WINNIPEG, Sept. 7 (AP)—Slender, twenty-two-year-old Nora Hankin, of Montreal, lead a representative field into the first round of the Canadian women's closed golf tournament today, firing an 87 to win the Ella Murray trophy for low aggregate in the eighteen-hole qualifying test.

Ten women from Eastern Canada and twenty-two from the West posted scores of 102 or less to enter tomorrow's match play along with the Canadian women's open champion, Mrs. John Rogers, Winnipeg, and the runner-up, Mrs. Eric Phillips, Toronto. The latter two qualified automatically through their play in the open.

Miss Hankin's low 87 was five strokes more than she took in placing second in the open qualifying round, four strokes behind Beatrice Barrett, of Minneapolis. Mrs. E. E. Jackson, of Victoria, was second with 88 and only six of the field of forty-three broke 90.

Eight visitors failed to qualify, including Mrs. Charles Wilson, Victoria, and three Saskatoon women, Mrs. R. R. Watts, Mrs. R. W. Thorpe and Margaret MacMillan.

The Maritime champion, Barbara Trilles, of Bridgewater, N.S., Mrs. H. W. Renwick, of Vancouver, and Ruth Thompson, Winnipeg, barely scraped under the wire with scores of 102.

Two Montreal stars, the Quebec champion, Mrs. J. D. Pearce, and Mrs. H. W. Soper, both had 89's, as did the Ontario titleholder, Hamilton's Mrs. Rita Shuttleworth, and Alice MacDonald, of Winnipeg.

Sixteen-year-old Margaret Esler, of Rosetown, Sask., shot an excellent 91, same as Willo Love, Toronto. Mrs. Alex McBain and Mrs. H. S. Robinson, Toronto; Evelyn Mills, Ottawa; and Dorothy Holmes, Truro, N.S., complete Eastern Canada's surviving contingent.

MAINLANDERS QUALIFY
Mrs. G. M. Cuppage joined her fellow Victorian, Mrs. Jackson, British Columbia champion, in the first round, and four Vancouver players survived—Kaye Farrell, Winnifred Evans, Lillian Boyd and Mrs. Renwick.

Calgary qualified Mrs. K. C. Allen, but the latter's daughter, Daphne, withdrew. Mary Macdonald, of Edmonton, and two Regina women, Mrs. Gordon Brown and Mrs. R. S. Rideout, the Saskatchewan titlist, complete the Western group of surviving visitors.

Eldine Cross, of Winnipeg, shot a 96 for a net 77 to win the handicap bowl for low net. The club championship went to St. Charles Country Club, of Winnipeg, with a score of 384. The Niagara Club was the only other entry.

The women start match play tomorrow for the title vacated by Mrs. F. J. Mulqueen, of Toronto. Two rounds will be played on Thursday, with the semi-finals on Friday and the final on Saturday. All matches are over eighteen holes.

Ott Is Forced at Third

Mel Ott, diminutive but hard-hitting third baseman of the New York Giants, is shown being forced out at third by the Pittsburgh Pirate third-sacker, Brubaker. The umpire looks kind of mad about the whole business. But the Giants won both games of the double-header at the Polo Grounds, in New York.

TODD RETAINS GOLF HONORS BY EASY WIN

Southpaw Ace Defeats Walter Newcombe in City Final By Wide Margin

After eliminating the tournament medalist and then reaching the final by defeating a young clubmate on the final green, Jimmy Todd, ace southpaw shotmaker, left-handed his way to his third straight city golf championship on Labor Day at the Colwood course by submerging Walter Newcombe, Gorge Vale Club, under an 11 and 9 score in the scheduled thirty-six-hole play-off.

Tommy Rickinson Wins Prize With P. Angeles Catch

Of the thirteen anglers invading Port Angeles over the Labor Day holiday from this city to compete in the annual salmon derby, Tommy Rickinson, known to his pals as the "Jokers" pupil, returned to Victoria with the lone catch. Rickinson hooked an eleven-pounder, while the rest of the local competitors came home without a thing. For his catch the local fishermen received a fine large wooden reel. Jack Cox, Seattle, won the event with a thirty-six-pounder, hooked off Ediz Hook, which entitled him to first prize of a brand new automobile. Mrs. Dick Owens, Port Angeles, won second prize of a motorboat with her twenty-seven-pound salmon. More than 300 competed in the event.

battle was going to last after the first eighteen holes were posted.

PLAYED WELL
In putting out Morrison the titleholder was hitting the ball well, being one under par for the distance while the medal winner was just four strokes over when he faded from the running. On the other hand, Newcombe marched into the last bracket by a 3 to 2 decision over Cec Brown, Colwood, and also over Gordon Verley and Norm Wallace.

Todd was only behind once against Newcombe and that was the first hole when the Gorge club swinger caged a birdie three. He reached the morning turn four up and was out in front at the half-way distance by eight holes. Todd then went on after lunch to be down the hole and closed out the argument at the three-quarter post, the twenty-seventh hole to be exact.

ST. LEGER IS CARDED TODAY

Mid-Day Sun Strong Favorite to Win Renewal of Classic in England

DONCASTER, Yorkshire, Sept. 7.—With Mrs. G. Butt Miller's colt, Mid-Day Sun a strong favorite to establish himself the outstanding three-year-old of the season, a field of fifteen was ready tonight for the sixteenth renewal tomorrow of the St. Leger, last of the season's five classics.

Principal opposition to the Derby winner was expected from the Aga Khan's grey colt Sultan Mahomed and William Woodward's Perifox. Mid-Day-Sun, unbeaten since his triumph at Epsom and the season's leading money winner so far, was backed at 3 to 1 tonight in the final callover of odds at the Victoria Club in London—Sultan Mahomed was quoted at 92 to twenty and Perifox at 7 to 1.

The field was reduced during the day with the scratching of Lord Astor's Cash-Book. Arrangements were immediately made for Gordon Richards, England's champion jockey who was to have been up on

AT HOME 20 WEEKS WITH RHEUMATISM

Wife Feared Husband Would Never Work Again

When her husband had been at home twenty weeks with rheumatism in his back, this woman began to think he would never work again. At last, she said to him: "Let's try Kruschen," and the change that took place was, in her own words, "like a miracle." Here is her letter:

"My husband is subject to rheumatism and suffered terribly with his back. Some time ago, I had him in the house twenty weeks with it. I really didn't think he would ever work again. We tried all the different kinds of salts you could mention, but none of them did him any good. Then I said, 'Let's try Kruschen.' Since then, we have proved Kruschen salts to be worth its weight in gold. My husband is back at his job, thanks to Kruschen. The change is made like a miracle."

Two of the salts in Kruschen are the most effective solvents of uric acid crystals known to science. They swiftly dull the sharp edges of the painful crystals and convert them into a harmless solution, which is then expelled through the natural channels. (Adv.)

In any action decided on at the Mainland meeting, Island play-offs were advanced to facilitate the Provincial play-offs, with the result the Winter and Wenger series, a knockout series for Island clubs, will be played as a post-season series, instead of just prior to the provincial play-downs.

C. E. Bonner, of Cobble Hill, was re-elected president. Other officers were: Honorary president, McTaggart Cowan, Vancouver; first honorary vice-president, John Johnson, Victoria; second honorary vice-president, John Hunt, Victoria; vice-president, S. Bishop, Port Alberni; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. A. Cronk, Shawnigan Lake.

Leading American League Sluggers

PROBABLY the greatest second baseman in the game today, Charles Gehringer, of the Detroit Tigers, stands a better than even chance of adding another laurel to his already generous list. At present Charlie is batting about .388, and such stars as Di Maggio, Gehrig and Travis or any other players who care to challenge for the batting lead in the American League, will have to hit around the 400 mark if they intend to beat Gehringer out of the honors. Charlie has been runner-up to the title many years, but this year he seems to be going at a steady pace and not likely to wilt under pressure. He is pictured here in two different poses.

HOW LONG CAN A THREE-QUARTER WIFE HOLD HER HUSBAND?

You have to work at marriage to make a success of it. You may be married, but that's the way they're made, and you must make it work. When you're married, you're not just a man and a woman, you're a family. You've got to know how to get along with each other, and you've got to know how to get along with the world. For these reasons, one woman has told another how to get along with her husband, in an "unofficial" way, with a little bit of help from a Vegetable Compound. It helps Nature keep up the system, then, by using the ingredients from the functional disorders which women must endure in the three months of life. From the girlhood to womanhood, it's a long, long way, and you've got to know how to get along with it.

Don't be a three-quarter wife, be a full one. Use Vegetable Compound and you'll be a full one.

MARINE, RAIL and AIR

VESSEL HERE
FROM ORIENTAmerican Mail Liner Arrived
With Passengers, Mail
And Cargo

With all her passenger accommodation occupied, the American Mail Line S. S. President Jefferson, Captain John Griffiths, U.S.N.R., commander, arrived alongside Rithet Pier at 4 o'clock yesterday morning from the Orient, and after landing passengers, mail, and cargo, continued to Seattle at noon. Officers of the ship reported the usual summer weather on the Pacific.

The highlight of the liner's sixteenth voyage to the Far East was a special trip from Shanghai and Manila with 300 refugees from the former city. Eastbound the Jefferson did not touch at Shanghai.

SCHOOL TEACHERS
The majority of the travelers arriving on the American Mail Line ship were school teachers returning from touring Orient countries. All had the same stories to tell of disarranged itineraries, but few had witnessed the bombing of the Chinese city or any of the horrors of actual conflict. Other passengers had suffered inconveniences in plenty, owing to the movements of troops and the methods employed in checking all foreigners. Passengers leaving the liner here included Mrs. Mary Brown and Master T. Brown, the former being connected with the British Broadcasting Company, on a world tour; C. O. Beckett, connected with radio station WAW, New Guinea; W. F. Field, of the same station; Elizabeth Dixon, New York; Mrs. P. S. Hopkins, Peter Hopkins and John Hopkins, Boston; Mary E. Reade, Brookline, and Claire D. Wermuth, St. Louis.

BOUND FOR SEATTLE
Travelers going through to Seattle included Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt and Quentin Roosevelt, returning from an Oriental tour; Mr. and Mrs. Jim Marshall, the former being far East correspondent of Colliers, Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Conant, the former being an attorney of Overland, Missouri; Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Fields, Oklahoma; Mr. and Mrs. Henry R. Foley, real estate operator from Philadelphia; Dr. Thomas M. Gan, of the school of medicine, John Hopkins University; Charles Goldberg, merchant, New York; Dr. Joseph Herstein and Miss Herstein, New York.

Others arriving on the Jefferson were Miss Longstrech, missionary for New York; Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Peyer, the former being treasurer of the Philippine Manufacturing Company; Mrs. A. Rosnikova, violinist, for New York; Miss Helen V. Sandercock, administrative staff of the University of Southern California; Rev. Robert and Mrs. J. Smith, Oklahoma; Dr. A. L. Tewksbury, dean of the Bard College, Columbia University; and Mrs. A. E. Wilcox, missionary for San Francisco.

SAW BOMBING
OF SHANGHAIMrs. Theodore Roosevelt, Jr.,
At Time Had No Thought
Of Danger

"We were so fascinated with what was going on in Shanghai during the early days of the conflict that we did not have time to feel apprehensive about our safety," Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., told newspapermen while in port for a short time here yesterday on board the President Jefferson, Seattle-bound from the Orient.

Mrs. Roosevelt, with her son, Quentin, is returning from a pleasure trip to China. She spent the last portion of her stay with friends in the International Settlement of Shanghai, and was in the Eastern metropolis for three days after hostilities had broken out.

"We were in Shanghai to see the first use of bombers on the part of the Chinese against a foreign power," Mrs. Roosevelt said, declaring that the early scenes of one of the greatest dramas of history had been unfolded before their eyes.

"One the fighting had started, there was no time to be afraid," she stated. "All we wanted to do was to see as much of the greatest spectacle in the world as we could, and we achieved that end."

WERE FOREWARNED
"Saturday, August 14, was the day when we saw most activity," Mrs. Roosevelt said. "It was the day of the first Chinese aerial counter-attack, and we were forewarned of the attack by the firing of the Japanese anti-aircraft guns. We had gone up to the grill on the top floor of the Cathay Hotel in the International Settlement to obtain a good view of the attack, but the manager sent us down because it was 'too dangerous.' We didn't mind the excitement, however, because we were looking out of a lower window, we saw two bombs dropped from a plane above, which fell at the edge of the Whangpoo River, just in front of us. The spray went up to a height of six stories, and drenched the windows we were watching from on its way down."

"After we left the hotel, we proceeded along Nanking Road, and were held up at a street corner for some minutes by a traffic jam which resulted from thousands trying to escape from the open streets. A Sikh policeman was vainly trying to keep the traffic under control."

"About eight minutes after we left the corner, the very spot we had been standing on was bombed, and almost everyone within a distance of a block along the street was killed. The Sikh policeman, who had remained at his post, was later found among the almost unrecognizable dead."

ONLY TIME AFRAID
"In all the action and fighting we saw, the only time we were afraid was during the two and a half-hour trip when we were taken by tender down the Whangpoo to join our vessel. We were under fire for a distance of eight miles."

To cap it all off, Mrs. Roosevelt said, the President Jefferson with her cargo of refugees had landed at Manila only an hour before the earthquake there, and her son had escaped unhurt.

"When we were told we could not go to Peking, we thought we were in for a dull summer, but it did not turn out that way," Mrs. Roosevelt said.

Despite the misadventures of the trip, she had arrived back only a week later than she intended, she explained.

Sent Message to President

Taking exception to the statement issued by President Franklin D. Roosevelt over the week-end, in which the Chief Executive of the Republic advised all United States citizens to leave China or take the consequences if anything should happen to them while in the fighting zone, Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., who reached Victoria on the S. S. President Jefferson, yesterday, sent a note of protest to the President on the arrival of the ship here. Abandoning United States citizenship under the circumstances was unthinkable, the wife of the former Governor-General of the Philippines told newspapermen. Mrs. Roosevelt was accompanied to the Orient by her son, Quentin Roosevelt.

DIFFICULT
OBJECTIVESpecial Writer of Colliers
Finds It Hard to Reach
Shanghai

Getting into Shanghai at the present time is much harder than getting out. At least that is what Mr. and Mrs. Jim Marshall discovered. They arrived here yesterday on the American Mail Line S. S. President Jefferson.

Mr. Marshall, who has been writing of Oriental conditions for Colliers Weekly over a period of years, was in Java when the latest Sino-Japanese conflict "broke." Hurrying to Singapore with Mrs. Marshall, they took passage for Shanghai, but were carried on to Yokohama, when a typhoon prevented their ship's approach to the Chinese port.

With no opportunity of getting to the "hot-spot" from Yokohama, they found they could book on a French liner at Kobe. They made arrangements accordingly, moved their luggage aboard the ship on arrival there and figured their transportation troubles were over, when the French Government stepped in and took over the vessel.

There was no chance of getting from Japan to Hanoi or Manila, as no steamship tickets were being issued to either place on account of the cholera in Hongkong and the refugee situation in Manila. So Mr. and Mrs. Marshall decided to sail for Seattle, where they hope to get transportation and make arrangements for reaching Shanghai by either the S. S. President Jefferson, leaving on Sunday next, or the S. S. Empress of Japan, sailing the following Saturday from Victoria.

NOT ENTHUSIASTIC
Mr. Marshall knew nothing of what had happened in Shanghai outside of the wireless advice received aboard ship. While in Japan, he had some opportunities of observing the reaction of the Japanese people towards the situation and found that the average Japanese, not connected with the army, was not interested very much in what was taking place while, he stated, it looked as if a certain section of the military was not over-enthusiastic. Some of the fighting men, at least, looked on the operations as more or less of a "dirty job," in which there would be no glory for the soldiers. A real war and not a punitive expedition, as the soldiers considered the present operations while he was in Japan, would give them an opportunity of gaining some war renown, and would be looked on with more favor. This general attitude to the matter, however, did not mean there was any lack of patriotism among the Japanese people.

The Victoria, which left Noma August 25 for Seattle, had 245 passengers aboard. The United States coast guard cutter Haida was standing by.

CROWDED TRAINS
SLOW UP TRAVELMrs. L. J. Maguire, from Long Beach, Calif., where she is a school teacher, was in Nanking accompanied by her sister, Mrs. J. A. Te-sack, when the Sino-Japanese trouble started. "We tried to get to Shanghai," she stated, on arrival of the President Jackson here yesterday, "and had to wait four hours at the railway station before our train left. While waiting we saw 3,000 soldiers pass on the way to Shanghai in heavy marching equipment."

Leaving Nanking there were 216 passengers crowded in one car, 210 of whom were Chinese. On the way there the train was sidetracked a number of times. Normally a few hours' ride, it took the trains twenty-six hours to reach Shanghai, where the bombing had already started. Chinese fled under the cars when the train stopped, anxious to get under cover of anything that looked like protection, if only fancied.

"What'll I Say . . . Having a Wonderful Time, Wish You Were Here!"

THE TUTTS . . . By Crawford YoungWhat Today Means*"VIRGO"

If September 8 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9 to 11 a.m., from 3 to 5 p.m., and from 8 to 10 p.m. The danger periods are from 7 to 8 a.m., from 6 to 8 p.m., and from 10 p.m. until midnight.

This will be a poor day to have a brainstorm, or to suddenly disregard the physical or mental comforts of others. It will pay to look twice at inanimate objects, for your eyes might play some strange tricks this day, particularly where uniformity or similarity in appearance of materials might be misleading. High-handed method and dictatorial tones are liable to be responsible for most of the domestic and business quarrels of the day. The fewer favors you ask, the better off you will be, for the average person is apt to be engrossed in personal affairs this day, with little time to spare. This day is apt to be trying on tempers, so it will be wise to think twice before making any critical comment. Puritanical ideas will not be popular, so be broad-minded in questions of living social usages. Married and engaged couples, as well as those whose hearts Cupid has trifled with, may find that any kind of amusement planned on the spur of the moment is likely to be very acceptable. If a woman and September 8 is your birthday you may have remarkable powers of healing. A soothing influence might make you a welcomed visitor to those who are physically or mentally upset. You ought to possess a very orderly mind, which is apt to be reflected in the systematic way you handle domestic and business affairs. Your generosity should win you many friends and help your popularity. The ultimate results of most of your impulses will be very good. Lady Luck, perhaps, is coming at just the time you need her; most so never get discouraged. Be careful not to overlook any of your talents; because through their development you might make a substantial amount of money. As a dietitian, trained nurse, secretary, shop or restaurant manager, artist, writer or teacher your achievements are likely to rate high. Married life appears to be the most logical one for you to embrace. The child born on September 8 is frequently spoiled through overindulgence. During this youngster's adolescence and high school days, parents must use common sense in impressing on it the importance of observing the punctilious demands of polite society. If a man and September 8 is your natal day, you must either overcome your weaknesses or they will overcome you. If you develop sufficient stamina to withstand the temptations of self-indulgence, your victory in the battle of life will be a glorious one. Work of a scientific, literary, engineering, architectural, medical, legal or trading nature might enable you to become a wealthy man.

MAINLANDERS TAKE HONORS

Watkins-Winram Softballers
Tounce Painter's Bruins,
17-4, in Final Play-Off

Poling out seventeen base knocks from the offerings of George Glendinning, Bert Simpson and Harold Turner, 170 of Painter's Bruins hurled, and making them good for a like number of runs, Watkins-Winram, Vancouver softballers, on Monday defeated the Bruins, 17-4, in the third and final game of the British Columbia senior "A" softball finals.

Bruins, after playing at the top of their form since mid-season and right through the city and Lower Island play-offs, cracked wide open against the Mainlanders and had little or nothing to offer either defensively or offensively. It was their worst performance of the season and, unfortunately for the 1,200 fans and the club, proved a poor climax to a season of brilliant play.

GOES TO SHOWERS
Glendinning started on the hill-ock, but a barrage of hits and errors by his clubmates sent him to the showers in the early stages of the third frame. Bert Simpson, followed and suffered a similar fate after a stay of four and two-thirds innings. Harold Turner, Bruins' third twirler, proved capable of stemming the attack, but it was too late.

Vancouver collected seven hits from Glendinning for seven runs; nine hits and ten runs from Simpson, and one safety and no markets from Turner.

SINKS TEE SHOT
W. H. Low, Santa Barbara, scored a "dodo" on the short second hole, a distance of 135 yards, at the Oak Bay links on Labor Day while playing in a friendly foursome with H. I. McCormick, Santa Barbara, Charles Stanier, Victoria, and C. M. Ambrose, Seattle.

WINS DOUBLES CHAMPIONSHIP

Walter Peddle and Alec McCallum Capture Event After Keen Match

By W. H. YOUNG

The doubly representatives of the Lake Hill Lawn Bowling Club, who succeeded in winning the Yarrow Trophy, emblematic of the doubles championship of Vancouver Island, have every reason for elation because of the exhibition they put up against a combination skipped by one of the most expert exponents of the game hailing from this part of the universe. By their victory they fully earned the right to the title of champions, and among those who congratulated them upon their splendid work there were none more earnest in their felicitations than those whom they had defeated in the final struggle.

After a grilling schedule which called for well-nigh perfect work from the commencement of the contest, the teams composed of W. Peddle and A. McCallum, of the Lake Hill Club, and E. Eastham and F. Harman, of Burnside, came through with flying colors and faced each other in the final round, on the evening of Labor Day.

PRIZE WINNERS

At the conclusion of the contest, Dave Dewar, of the Victoria Lawn Bowling Club, was called upon to present the prizes, which he did in his well-known affable manner, and this brought to a conclusion one of the most successful contests for the Yarrow Trophy, which is staged annually on the greens of the Canadian Pacific Lawn Bowling Club.

Prize winners were:
First—W. Peddle and A. McCallum, Lake Hill Club.
Second—E. Eastham and F. Harman, Burnside Club.
Third—E. Spencer and D. Ramsay, Burnside Club (last year's winners).
Fourth—F. Holmes and T. Devenon, Burnside Club.
